The above map shows the boundaries of the Monterey Peninsula Game Refuge that the Fish and Game Commission, meeting today and tomorrow in San Francisco, propose to abandon. The refuge was established in 1933 by an act of the legislature (Senate Bill No. 697, in effect August 21.) It prohibited hunting or carrying fire arms in the area designated in the above map, except by lawful occupants of privately owned lands, who may use them in killing birds and mammals not protected by state law.

Two Street Sweeps Weekly For Carmel

Charles Childers, commissioner of streets, yesterday announced that hereafter there will be two sweepings of the Carmel streets every week, Mondays and Fridays, and he sends out an appeal to the merchants for their co-operation.

Bill Askew, street superintendent, reports that frequently after there has been an 8:00 a. m. cleaning an hour later the merchants are sweeping trash out of their stores into the gutters. Continuing this system will defeat the commissioner's plan to keep the streets in apple-pie order, but care on the part of each individual can do much to improve the bad condition that has existed heretofore.

TIE UP THE DOG

Judge George P. Ross voiced a reminder yesterday that it is a violation of the city ordinance to allow dogs to run loose in the business district. The penalty is $25 fine minimum; maximum, $300.

City Clerk Peter Mawdsley is on his way to San Francisco this morning to appear before the California Fish and Game Commission, meeting in the Supervisors' Rooms in City Hall. He will present Carmel's official protest against the elimination of the Monterey Peninsula Game Refuge.

Audubon members, Sierra Club, Lobos League and Sportsmen's club representatives plan on appearing to add their protest.

Del Monte properties also will have a representative.

A great many letters and telegrams from Carmel have been reaching Emil Ott, Jr., executive director of the commission, if one may judge by the number of people who phoned The Pine Cone or called at the office following the notification The Pine Cone sent by mail Tuesday to all Carmel Post Office Box Holders and Carmel R. F. D. subscribers. It was necessary for The Pine Cone to inform its readers of the proposed action of the California Fish and Game Commission by penny postal card because of the commission's new policy of announcing its intentions

General Hike In Phone Rates; 3 Min. To Monterey

Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. was granted the right to increase rates throughout the state, with the exception of San Francisco and Los Angeles, for an interim period not defined, at a hearing held by the State Public Utilities Commission June 24. Although this will increase the revenue by $875,000 per month it is claimed that the wage increases granted last May will absorb this amount.

D. D. Muir, Monterey Peninsula P. T. & T. manager, announces that in Carmel the change in rates will be as follows: Monthly individual line business service will be raised from $3.75 to $4.75; two-party service from $3.25 to $4.00; individual residence service from $2.75 to $3.25; two-party residence from $2.25 to $2.75; four-party residence from $2.00 to $2.25. Installation rates for business service will be raised from $3.50 to

Nielsen, Bert Dienelt Get Together On South Site For New Primary School

Abandoning the bogged-down, remote control negotiations they have been carrying on through their agents and lawyers, Bert Dienelt, owner of the Mission Ranch property, part of which is required by the Carmel Unified School District to complete the south elementary school site in the Mission Tract, and Harold Nielsen, chairman of the school board, got together for a friendly talk yesterday and appear to be approaching an understanding.

Dienelt reiterates his lack of enthusiasm for selling at all, and his special distaste for selling the choicest 80 feet out of 220 foot frontage. If he should sell only the 80 by 400 feet that the board has offered to buy, Dienelt maintains that the remainder of the land would be greatly reduced in value because the school authorities propose to close a street and there would be no ingress or egress to his property. However, he can be persuaded to sell if the board will make him a satisfactory offer for the entire 220 by 400 feet. He can be forced to sell by court order, but the school board is not eager to institute condemnation proceedings.

Nielsen does not find the additional land a barrier to the sale, as he believes the board can use a larger school site than originally planned, and it would be wise and provident for the district to have extra space for future expansion.

There remains the matter of price. The board has already spent $16,000 to acquire the Jimmy Doud property adjoining the Die-

The Editor's Column

The Mayor—Three Bars—The Gallery—

Mayor Fred Godwin, recuperating from a strained back in the Monterey Hospital, mulling over affairs of state in his enforced leisure this week, found something to be pleased about. He likes the new state law making it mandatory for the police judge to deprive drunk drivers of their driver's license for 90 days the first time they are caught; for a year the second time. "This is right in line with our traffic safety program in Carmel," he observes.

This additional smack to the drunk drivers is to be commended, no doubt, but we shouldn't overlook the fact that life has never been rosy in Carmel for this particular type of offender. Judge Ross is a hard man with the drunk driver, and he intends to continue to be so. According to police records, there have been 12 arrests in the last six months for drunk driving. Of those brought before Judge Ross, four were fined $100 each, one $200, and one's charge was reduced to reckless driving on the grounds that he was on the way from medical treatment and was under the influence of drugs —fine, $50. There is one case pending; a soldier from Fort Ord, who is confined to the hospital and has twice attempted suicide.

We certainly touch on the seamy side of life when we start thumbing the police records!

Though the midnight closing regulation is legally off throughout the state, three Carmel bars announce that they intend voluntarily to continue midnight closing. They are the Pine Inn, Whitney's, and the Aztec.

This decision on the part of the proprietors will be welcomed by the Carmel police who find their policing problems increased in direct ratio as the hours advance in the night.

Carmel people will have an opportunity to do a little something for the Art Gallery in return for the benefits the Gallery brings the community in prestige, and the pleasure it provides in frequent, interesting art exhibitions which are open to the public at no charge.

The picture sales show room is now completed, but a rug and several over-stuffed chairs are needed for furnishing. The possible purchaser should be made comfortable in pleasant surroundings. This is elementary sales psychol-

Reilly Says No S. B. E. Hearing On Beer License

State Board of Equalization Member George R. Reilly told The Pine Cone yesterday that there will not be a hearing on the city council's protest against the issuance of the Colliard Chop House on sale beer license.

"My legal advice is that we cannot hold a hearing on whether or not we should issue a license that is already issued," Reilly said.

The license was issued on the morning of the fifteenth day, the last day allowed for the filing of protests. Carmel's protest arrived the same day. City Attorney William Hudson maintains that the board was premature in issuing the license; Reilly that the protest was tardy.

Had the protest been brought to the attention of the board before the issuance of the license a public hearing would have been held before the license was issued; but now, Reilly says, such a hear-

SUMMER SOFTBALL LEAGUE STARTS NEXT WEDNESDAY

With preliminary practice skirmishes out of the way, the serious business of championship play will commence next Wednesday when the Carmel Fire Department clashes with the Lions Club in the opening game of the Summer Recreation League. Five teams are entered in the Summer League, and they are so closely matched that it is impossible to single out a favorite to cop the crown. The undefeated Faculty, 1946 champions, are again in the running and will take a lot of beating before they holler "Uncle." The 1946 second place club, the Lions Club, will be back louder and stronger. With a year's experience, the youngsters on the Fireman club will be hard to beat. Under the leadership of Jim Kelsey the Legion appears to be the dark horse of the league. They looked mighty potent against the Firemen last week and are capable of going all the way. Wofford Dufur has banded together a steady crew to represent the Police and with Chief Fraties supplying the batting punch they could walk off with any game. All in all it looks like a tight race and, regardless of who wins, a lot of fun will be had by all participants.

SANTA CRUZ NINE EDGES PINE CONE, 2 TO 1

Although both pitchers allowed but three hits, two costly errors at inopportune times proved the undoing of the Pine Cone, and they dropped an exciting contest to the Deer Park Tavern club from Santa Cruz. The Tavern team presented a well integrated ball club which was sparked by the sharpest battery seen at Sunset field this season.

The visitors broke into the scoring column in the fourth frame when a misjudged fly ball went for three bases and the runner scored on an infield out. They took a two run lead in the following inning when a single went through the wicket for an unearned four-bagger.

Carmel waited until the last canto to make their bid for the ball game. Ky Miyamoto led off with a screaming double against the right field wall and he was driven in by Gene Ricketts' double over first base. The Tavern pitcher tightened up at this point and sent the next three batters back to the bench via the strikeout route.

The Lowe Realty team from Palo Alto will provide the opposition for the Pine Cone tomorrow night at Sunset Field. Game time is 8 o'clock. The Realty club is in the Palo Alto A league and is considered one of the best teams on the Peninsula.

PINE CONE BLANKS SAN JOSE CHAMPS ON KY'S NO-HITTER

Continuing to pitch the same sensational ball which he exhibited against the Spreckels Honeydews last week, Ky Miyamoto shut the door in the faces of the Sunnyvale American Legion nine last Saturday night at Sunset field. The Legion club is leading the San Jose and Sunnyvale City leagues and is rated one of the better outfits in Northern California. The hard-hitting San Jose club could not solve the offerings of Miyamoto and had to be content with one man reaching first base. Ky walked one man in the first inning and pitched perfect ball from that point on.

Joe Nicholson accounted for the first Pine Cone tally when he hit a tremendous triple against the right field wall to score a runner from first base. Carmel picked up three more runs in the 5th canto on lusty pokes by Giles, Studevant, Ricketts, and Ky Miyamoto. Besides pitching a no-hit, no-run game Ky hit a solid 2 for 3 to lead the Pine Cone bat-wielders.

Sunnyvale threw a 225 pound fast ball pitcher at the locals and for the first two innings he sent the Carmel hitters back to the bench muttering to themselves. However, after Nicholson had teed off for his triple the locals gained confidence and hit the San Jose star as if he were a cousin. The Legion infielders turned in some sparkling plays which aided them to keep the score within respectable proportions.

LEGION SMOTHERS THE FIREMEN, 13 TO 6

In a practice game prior to the opening of the Summer Recreation League next Wednesday, Carmel Legion carried too many guns for the Carmel Fire Department and walked off with a free hitting contest, 13 to 6. Both teams were nattily attired in new jerseys which gave them added zip at bat and in the field. Charley Childers was so entranced by his new regalia that he combed the offerings of Kenny Roberts for 4 hits in the same number of times at bat. Charley drove in 5 runs to lead the Legion

Laurence Olivier's Presentation Of Henry V For The Screen Done With Great Skill And Decision

BY R. ELLIS ROBERTS

What a piece of theatre this play is! That's true enough of every play that Shakespeare wrote and of many he just re-wrote or altered; but Henry V remains one of the superbest theatrical vehicles in English. If you read it aloud, you act it, from the first words of the opening chorus. And in Laurence Olivier's splendid presentation of the play for the screen he gives us every troy ounce of the drama's theatrical quality. The great virtue of this fine production lies here; it is not a screen adaptation or re-interpretation of the play—it is the presentation of a play, done with such skill and decision that, the performance over, the audience sits for a moment, waiting for the actors to come take their curtain-calls. The achievement of this is most cunning. We see, first, as in a painted manuscript, that Renaissance London of 1600: the famous London Bridge crowded with shops, the close streets, the tower of Southwark Church and then, with its brave flag flying, the little Globe Theatre which Richard Burbage, the Shakespearean actor, built in 1599. And we go into the theatre, as it were; sit with that noisy audience, move swiftly to the actors' dressing-room; back to the audience and there, with them, watch the play. Then, as the scene shifts to Southampton, the Channel, then to France, we step from the pit of the Globe Theatre into the pages of a fourteenth century Book of Hours. The splendid costumes, the superb horses, the banners, the armour, are seen against the medieval landscapes, the walled towns, the cloistered rooms which first enchanted us in illuminated manuscripts and enchant us no less in this great film. In the great court scenes, the great battle scenes, we have reached just that suspension of belief which we need, and we are, at a breath, with the King and Dauphin of France, with King Harry and his counselors; at the siege of Harfleur; we walk with Henry round the camp on that 24th of October, eve of the feast of Crispin and Crispian, and are present with the tossing pennants, the armoured knights, the snorting, plunging horses and the deadly triumphant archers on the bloody field at Agincourt. It is a most moving experience.

The reasons for this movie's great success are three. First, one man, Mr. Olivier, has produced, directed and acted it; second, a stage play has been shot as a play—of course, full advantage has been taken of those scenes where movie realism can beat stage realism. (Anyone who has seen a real horse on a stage, as I did in Henry Irving's production of Don Quixote, will know what I mean.) Thirdly, an extremely good script has been handled expertly. The only inexplicable piece of cutting is that part of Henry's speech in the wooing of Katherine where he looks to the birth of a son who "shall go to Constantinople and take the Turk by the beard." It is hard to lose that piece of irony for us, who know that that son was to be one of the first pacifists and to lose France to Joan of Lorraine. In that charming "courting" scene, Shakespeare drew the earliest portrait of the "strong, silent Englishman," the simple soldier man who, at a pinch, out-talks the most voluble citizen of any other country.

The casting of the play is excellent. Among very good performances are those of Renee Asherson, Felix Aylmer, Robert Newton, Leslie Banks, Esmond Knight, Leo Genn, Harcourt Williams, Jimmy Hanley and Valantine Dyall.

I am indebted to the Golden Bough Playhouse for the two best movies I have seen, Henry V and the Swedish masterpiece Himletspelet, another movie in which the principal actor both directed and produced the film. The Peninsula and Central California owe a great debt to Mr. Kuster's enterprise in securing these magnificent productions for our delight.

DR. GRAY AT CHURCH OF THE WAYFARER

Membership Drive Is Planned For Symphony Assn.

A concerted drive for membership in the Monterey County Symphony Association is about to be undertaken, with Mrs. Muriel H. Simpson of Monterey and B. Franklin Dixon of Carmel as chairmen of the committee. Various classes of membership are open to all persons interested in supporting the organization. The Association president, Mrs. Grace C. Howden, stresses the fact that the orchestra, which has done a splendid job of creative work under its able conductors, is deserving of enthusiastic support from the communities of the county. All activities have been on a volunteer basis, but in order to function effectively the orchestra must build a fine music library, and meet various expenses incidental to public performance.

The orchestra has disbanded for the summer months, but every Monday evening at the high school there is rehearsal under John Farr for those members who are remaining in town. Until September it is scheduled as an Adult School class and everyone interested in getting instruction in instrumental music is invited to attend. Mr. Farr said, "This is an opportunity for those who did not join the orchestra last year to brush up and be ready to join in the fall." Some musical comedy pieces have been taken up recently and the group is now working on the triumphant march from Peter and the Wolf.

When the orchestra reassembles in the fall, Lorell McCann of the music department of Salinas Junior College, and Clifford Anderson of the Monterey High School music department will continue in joint conductorship.

The property of Robert A. The police department and the street department and Mr. Norton couldn't work up enough interest to order a truck to remove the gifts, but they do not constitute any public nuisance at The Pine Cone's time of going to press.

nelt piece. Nielsen says he doesn't know if the district has enough money available for immediate expenditure to buy the entire Dienelt block. Dienelt says he'll take a mortgage, but makes the stipulation that if the board should eventually decide to sell the property instead of build on it, he should have first bid to rebuy.

As for establishing a price, Dienelt suggests that he hire an appraiser, the board hire an appraiser, the two appraisers select a third, and he'll sell at the price agreed upon by the three wise men.

Nielsen says he'll go look at the property again, find out the exact measurements of the piece and maybe the school board will make an offer that Dienelt will find satisfactory without the assistance of three appraisers.

Fred O. Robbins

By E. L. TAYLOR

Fred O. Robbins, "Robbie," a Carmel resident of many years, died at the Salinas Hospital Friday, June 20, after an illness of several months. He was born in San Francisco 89 years ago. His parents died when he was very young so he lived with his guardian until of age. He had many stories of his early experiences when his associates were the boys south of Market Street.

At the age of 21 years, after receiving his inheritance, he took the stage coach, the only means of travel at the time, for San Luis Obispo, where he became engaged in mercantile and real estate business. While there he married Jennie Townsend. In 1884 he joined the Masonic order, the Commandery, and later became a Shriner. Some years later he returned to San Francisco and lost most of his possessions in the earthquake of 1906. He then went north, where he held positions in Seattle, Vancouver, and Victoria.

After the death of his wife he came to Carmel in 1923. The older residents will remember his office on Dolores street, where he wrote insurance, sold real estate, did notary work, often forgetting the fee. His doors were open to friend or stranger who was in need of advice.

Business was never Fred Robbins' chief interest. He loved the beautiful in music, poetry and drama. In earlier years, he had part in the local plays, sang in the Village choir and had great interest in all community ife.

He was a man of tender sympathy and of warm and close friendships. His love for dogs gave him an understanding of the nature of a dog few persons possess. A familiar sight on Carmel streets a few years ago was Fred Robbins and his devoted pal, Chips.

Much of his leisure was spent writing verse which he shared with his friends. Some of his poems found their way into print. The following lines were written a short time before his passing. They were printed in the New York Mirror and used by the late Dr. James Crowther in his Church Calendar:

"A little more tired at the close of day,
A little less anxious to have my way,
Not so ready to scold and blame,
A little more care for another's name.
A little more leisure to sit and dream,
A little more real the things unseen,
And so I'm faring down the way,
That leads to the gates of a better day."

Dudley Carter's Axe Carvings Make Paramount News

Dudley C. Carter, long a resident of Carmel but now living at Pilchuk River, Washington, is featured in a Paramount newsreel which will appear soon in the local theaters, showing him at work on a 20-foot tree stump carving a Forest Goddess. Samples of his work can be seen at Orville Jones' auto camp at the Carmel River bridge on Highway 1. Dudley writes wistfully that he was unable to accompany his wife on her recent visit to Carmel but that he plans to return soon.

Carter began his tree sculpture as a boy at his father's British Columbia lumber camps, when he admired the skill of the Indian totem pole makers, and he has perfected axe carving to such an extent that he was commissioned to carve the wood facade of the Shasta Cascade Building at the Golden Gate Exposition in 1939. In 1940 he gave an exhibition of axe carving at the Palace of Fine Arts in San Francisco, and more recently has been teaching sculpture at the University. Incidentally, he is a forest engineer and timber cruiser in his spare time.

Three New Singers In Bach Quartet

Three new singers will be heard in the Bach Festival vocal quartet this season. They will be Blythe Taylor Burns, soprano; Eula Beal, contralto; William Vennard, bass. The vocal quartet is the foundation of the Festival, and for several years Alice Mock, Ruth Terry and Russell Horton have held the first three coveted spots.

Russell Horton will be returning for the sixth time. Blythe Taylor Burns for many years has held top place in Los Angeles as the finest singer of oratorio on the west coast. Miss Burns has sung fourteen times with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, eight times in the Hollywood Bowl, eight times with the Vancouver, B. C., Symphony, and had wide, distinguished appearances throughout the country.

Eula Beal, contralto, is one of the new stars of the last two years, her recent appearance as leading contralto soloist in Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with the San Francisco Symphony winning outstanding praise.

William Vennard, bass, has just recently come to Los Angeles from Chicago.

Audubon Society Meets At Hastings; Plans Screen Tour

Last Sunday the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society held a post-season field trip, the members leaving Carmel at 5:30 a. m., and driving through the Valley when the day was still young. They congregated at Hastings Reservation, and under the leadership of Dr. Jean Linsdale, director of the reservation, they identified 47 species of birds.

After the picnic lunch under the trees the group retired to the museum, where Dr. Linsdale showed his records of specimens of grasses, insects, birds and mammals to be found on the reservation.

Dr. W. A. Angwin called a meeting of the members of the committee in charge of arrangements for the Screen Tour lectures to be given in the Sunset Auditorium next fall and spring. The four lectures with colored motion pictures already scheduled are to be given by Alexander Sprunt, Jr., Our Living Earth, in October; Laurel Reynolds, Fun with Birds, in November; Roger Tory Peterson, Western Birds, in January; Tom and Arlene Hadley, Happy Valley, in March. Robert E. Peck, president of the Audubon Society, is handling sales of season tickets which will cost $2.50 apiece, covering five evenings with nationally known naturalists. There will be a special price for students.

TOCHER NEWS

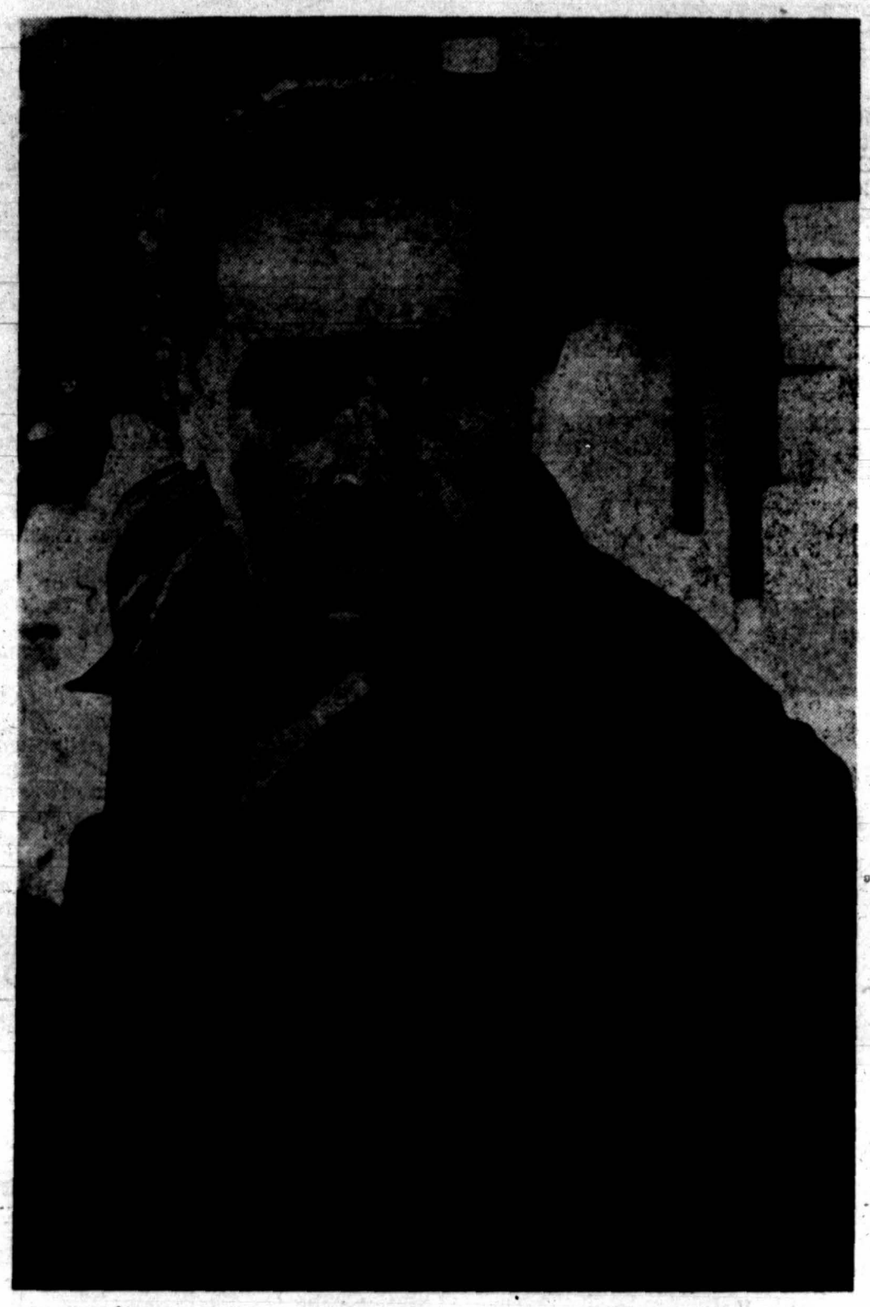
Mrs. W. J. Tocher has been out of her shop, The Covered Wagon, for several weeks and many people who have missed her did not know that she has been in the Children's Hospital in San Francisco. Mrs. Tocher has been home for a week but returned to the city yesterday for a checkup. Don Tocher is down from the University of California for the summer. He is majoring in geophysics.



A featured player in Man's Hope, immensely moving film of the Loyalist Air Force during the Spanish civil war, which comes to the Sunset Auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock. It is directed by Andre Malraux, with a score by Darius Milhaud. Demand for tickets indicates the same keen interest here in Carmel which the film has created in Europe and in this country wherever it has been shown. It is being presented under the auspices of the local Spanish Refugee Appeal Committee, of which Dr. Cornelius Van Niel is the chairman.

Crazy Hat Wins Refrigerator!

One of those "Breakfast in the morning" radio shows came to Capitol City last week, and Sarrah Carey won first prize for wearing the craziest hat in the audience. It was a full-sized refrigerator! (The prize, not the hat.)

"Glad them hats of hers paid off at last," says Ed, treating the whole thing like a joke. But you could see he was proud of Sarrah.

From where I sit, there's another thing Ed can be proud of: the way he's put up with those hats of Sarrah's, with never a criticism; just as she's put up with Ed's pipe and the other little freedoms he enjoys.

They've got that refrigerator home now, stocked with beer; and we're going over tonight to drink a toast—not just to Sarrah's hats taking first prize . . . but to a happily married couple, who've learned to live with one another's differences in tastes—whether it's a taste for hats or beer!

Up And Down The Pacific Basin Comdr. Howell Armor Has Found Inspiration For Carver's Art

The wood-carver seen in action during the last few weekends at the Clothesline Art Show is Howell Armor, the man who joined the Navy and saw the world's art. He is the most surprised of all at finding himself turning to art as a lifework, now that he is a retired Commander in the U. S. Navy and has ferreted out a spot for himself in Carmel.

It is no accident, he insists, that he has bought a home in the Carmel Woods on San Pedro Lane near San Luis, for he explored the coast before deciding where to settle. It had at first been his intention to take his wife, Gene, the Nova Scotian, back to Walbrook, Maryland, where he had been born, but when they found that their travels had made them too particular, they went into conference. They had met and married 24 hours before ship left, when Armor was on a midshipman cruise, and they were thus used to making quick decisions. They left Baltimore and headed west with the same ardor.

Armor joined the Navy in 1917 and was a bluejacket throughout the first World War, with the Atlantic fleet, but later he entered the Naval Academy at Annapolis and graduated with the class of '24. He served on cruisers, battleships, carriers and what he humorously refers to as beef boats, and in 1926 at Pensacola he won his wings. He was at Pearl Harbor on the historic day, attached to the cruiser Detroit, and during hostilities was placed in command of a flotilla of 36 ships, sailing to Australia, New Guinea, and Leyte. But he frowns at mention of the last because he was hospitalized just before having an opportunity to participate in this major engagement along with his command. He was retired only in January of this year.

Commander Armor's first interest in art evidenced itself in idle carving of ivory rings, but when he applied at the Honolulu Academy of Arts in 1940, he was told by Fritz Abplanalp, instructor, "I don't know anything about ivory carving because the oriental artists always stop work if they are observed, but I can teach you wood carving." That was something which pleased Armor and he took his lessons seriously. He studied also under Paul Huyam at the Nuuanu YMCA in Honolulu. He was always fascinated by the high culture as evidenced in the so-called primitive art of the Polynesians, and during his visit to Tahiti in 1925 and his later visit to Bora-Bora during the war, he was on the lookout for designs that could fertilize his own ideas. In Honolulu, while he studied wood carving, he found a way to use what he had been learning during many years of observation.

After his retirement this year, Commander Armor took his wife to Mexico for a vacation, but instead of idling he spent the entire month studying the ancient Indian designs. He recognized in the Aztec and Toltec art a great deal that could be adapted in his own work. As he learned to read the idiographs he realized that differences of style marked many of the ancient civilizations which have never been rightly appreciated in the United States. The designs on the rings for the pelota game (rings into which the ball must be tossed), and designs on sacrificial yokes, as well as the masks for ceremonial dances, gave him many new ideas which he determined to develop. It seemed to him that these traditional and basic designs, such as evidenced by the famous Aztec calendar stone, were entirely neglected by the modern artist of Mexico except in rare cases for jewelry. It is his intention some day soon to visit Taxco, Mexico, a community famous for its wood-carvers, and advance his study there.

In the Carmel Art Gallery at present there is an example of Armor's work: a black walnut bench carved in an almost direct replica of a Tahitian head-rest which was brought to this country by Zane Grey. He is working today on a pair of cherrywood bowls, salad sets of magnolia wood showing Hawaiian flower designs, and Polynesian bowls of monkey pod and koa. In his collection of material for future work he has Australian beechwood, Bora-Bora and Tahition native woods, tamarind from Hawaii, locust, ebony from South American and Africa, and teak from New Guinea and Siam. He finishes his products with linseed oil, varnish and lacquer, and wax which he makes from beeswax and turpentine.

The Carmel Art Gallery is planning to give an early one-man show of Commander Armor's complete inventory.

Put an end to "yowps"—install a Family-Size GAS WATER HEATER!

Who likes a chilly spray of cold water down the spine? It is certainly something to "yowp" about when you expect to relax with a steamy-sudsy, lazy bath and instead draw ice water.

When the hot water supply in your home "runs out" it means that the family use of hot water is bigger than your water heater can deliver. And the solution is simple—see your gas water heater dealer and have him replace your present heater with a new Automatic Gas Water heater with a big enough tank. Or use the chart below to help you "size-up" the hot water supply needed for your home and family.

Have You Read . . . ?

By Glenn Clairmonte

The University of California Press has just released a volume of one hundred poems from Les Fleurs du Mal by Charles Baudelaire, selected and translated by C. F. MacIntyre, with two photographs of the poet. MacIntyre has previously gained recognition as a poet in his own right and also as an outstandingly successful tarnslator from the German of poems by Rainer Maria Rilke. It is difficult for one to encompass a full realization of the facility with words which must be at MacIntyre's command, when he can write beautifully in three languages and within the discipline of many forms of poetry.

The English translation of each of these one hundred poems lies on a page opposing the original, and to those not understanding French the essence of Baudelaire's conception is plain and powerful. To those enjoying both languages there can be only wonder that MacIntyre has achieved the only forgivable reason for attempting to translate poetry: he has made the reader of a strange land feel the spearlike compulsion of the beauty in idea and expression which forced its way into form in the first place. Before a poet could have the character to submit himself to the straitjacket of another man's conception he must already have learned to bridle a greater power of expression than can be suspected. MacIntyre has risen above the handicaps and produced work which could earn him personal fame without the use of Baudelaire's foundation—but which acclaim him the more soundly since he has faithfully and deftly opened a door to Baudelaire for those who do not read French.

MacIntyre says in the preface: "All of Romanticism has filtered through Baudelaire's soul; coming at the last of the period, he has summarized it and passed it on to later generations. . . . He has extracted the highest possible beauty from most of the evils of life; it is his intimate journal, universal enough to become a testament of a literary epoch." This of course is the value of Baudelaire, and it is no accident that he can be read with pleasure even by those unaware of this, but the point of this particular volume is that MacIntyre has given to English speaking readers what Baudelaire has given to the French, in fully as fine a quality.

MacIntyre's scholarship is intense and yet rather delicious. He has included the six poems which were suppressed after a judicial process in 1857, and he quotes the poet's defense in that action :"The book must be judged as a whole; there will then be apparent its terrifying morality." And MacIntyre calls attention to the architecture, the rising toward a climax, the "succession of delights, and shocks, of comedies and tragedies."

As an example of MacIntyre's detached approach, in his Notes at the end of the book you will find the following comment on a poem which celebrates traditional epochs and heroes: "Pure Rousseauism. There is not to be seen in any museum in Europe a suit of armor big enough for a football player." This sort of recognition of Baudelaire's romantic irony makes the Notes very entertaining reading, and the deep background in French literature which is betrayed throughout them enriches any reader's enjoyment of Baudelaire. The bibliography is not too extensive but it is enlightening.

The University of California Press has turned out an edition that does justice to the contents, each page of type an object of art to be respected. MacIntyre, who lives in Berkeley and frequently visits friends in Carmel, must know a rich satisfaction when he takes this book into his hand. In his eerie in the lap of the hills, surrounded by books on floor, walls and table, he grins and scowls alternately, halfway proud of what he has done, halfway disgusted that he hasn't done better.

L'HOMME ET LA MER

Free man, you will always love the sea!
the sea, your mirror. Your soul sees itself in the billows rolling endlessly, and your spirit is a no less bitter gulf.

With joy you join your image in the surge;
clasp it with eyes and arms, and your heart's own sound is oftentimes forgotten in the profound din of that wild, unconquerable dirge.

Both of you are tenebrous and close:
man, none has plumbed your vast profundities;
O sea, your hidden riches no one knows,
so jealously you guard your mysteries!

And thus through centuries innumerable,
sans pity or remorse you fight each other,
loving death and carnage much too well,
eternal wrestlers! O implacable brothers!

LES HIBOUX

Sheltered under black yew-trees,
the owls are perched in rows; they wait,
like strange outlandish deities,
darting red eyes. They meditate.

Motionless, they will hold tight
until that melancholy hour
when, pushing off the slant sun's power, descend and stay the shades of night.

Their attitude informs the wise
that in this world just what he fears is necessary: change and riot;

and man, drunk of a shade that flies,
his punishment forever bears
for never learning to sit quiet.

CIEL BROUILLE

Your glances are a cloud-mist, one might say;
your eyes mysterious (are they green, blue, gray?),
changingly tender, dreamy, cruel eyes, mirror the indolence of pallid skies.

You bring back white days, gentle and veiled deep,
which make enchanted hearts dissolve in tears,
when, twisted by some unknown ill, with jeers
the wakeful nerves scratch at the spirit asleep.

Sometimes you seem like beautiful horizons
lit by the sunsets in the foggy seasons . . .
How dazzling the wet landscape set ablaze
below a jumbled sky by falling rays!

Perilous woman, O seductive clime!
Shall I adore your snow and hoar-frost's rime?
From this inexorable winter shall I feel pleasures more piercing than from ice and steel?

Days Before Yesterday

During the month of May, 1929, The Pine Cone carried an article which seems to be a timely reminiscence, now that the Forest Theatre activities are to be revived with three performances of Dan Totheroh's Distant Drums for the benefit of the Carmel Boys' Club on August 1, 2 and 3. We read:

"Carmel was the first community in the United States to start what is known as the little theatre movement. More than twenty years ago a handful of artists and writers, who gave luster to the location because they chose to live here, felt like giving expression to the dramatic feeling within them. They cleared a natural amphitheatre under the pines in the outskirts of the settlement. That was the founding of the now famous Forest Theatre, the first of innumerable outdoor theatres now such a feature in the community life of the state.

"For some 14 years the three plays given each summer by local players sufficed the community. Then in 1924 Maurice Browne decided to vacation in Carmel. He decided also to try out a poetic drama that he had written especially for Ellen Van Valkenburg. As leading man he brought with him George Ball.

"In view of George Ball's success as a director since that time, it is amusing now to see how fate literally dragged him into that angle of the work against his own desires. George wanted to act—nothing more. But when Maurice Browne left Carmel after a brief three months, the community as one man fell upon George and insisted that he carry on. George refused at first. He did not want the responsibility.

"The situation, however, forced an unwilling consent to stage a play or two until some other arrangement could be made that would leave him free to act—and nothing more. His first production was A Bill of Divorcement. Its perfection stunned Carmel. In spite of amateur actors and amateur assistants on the technical staff, it was clean cut and professional in every way. There was no escape for him from the hour the curtain went up on that first production. Instead of having a season of only three months, he prepared for a play a week or twice a month regularly throughout the year.

"Carmel wondered how he could keep his casts full and still have anybody left for audiences, for Carmel had only 1,500 residents. But there followed a succession of plays that gave to the little community many of the recent New York successes, extremely well set and brilliantly directed."

The article continues to explain that during the popularity of George Ball's presentation of Martin Flavin's Children of the Moon—

"It happened that Flavin himself was then at his country home near Carmel, and his joy at the production was so pronounced that he wrote New York newspapermen that the Carmel production was better in every respect than had been the professional production of the play on the legitimate stage in New York City.

"This brought Mr. Ball the privilege of producing all of Mr. Flavin's plays for try-outs.

"Another playwright sojourning for a time at Carmel was Jesse Lynch Williams, who gave Mr. Ball the exclusive right to produce all his plays.

"At about this time Homer Emmens came unostentatiously to Carmel and settled down, after 21 years with Charles Frohman as designer of sets. He said frankly that he was not interested in amateur theatre work. But he went to a play. What he saw there galvanized him into active interest, and many were the professional tricks he revealed to the little group assisting Mr. Ball."

There is plenty of theatre history taking place in Carmel today, where activities justify the excellent beginnings of 1908 and 1909.

Bolin-Culin Wedding

One of the loveliest weddings of the season was held at St. John's Del Monte Chapel last Saturday at 2 o'clock, when Barbara Bolin became the bride of Lieutenant John Edward Culin, the Reverend Theodore Bell officiating. The bride was gowned in white satin with sweetheart neckline and skirt made with a train. Her veil was fingertip length and she carried a bouquet of white orchids. She was given in marriage by her father, Dr. Rolf Bolin.

Maid of honor, Mary Chenoweth, wore a gown of pink satin and carried tuberous begonias of a deeper shade. The bridesmaids, Alicia Orcutt, Carla Lepori and Nancy Fitzhugh, wore apple green satin gowns and carried pink begonias. Frank Culin, Jr., stood as best man for his brother, and guests were shown to their seats by Don Berquist, Roe Martin, and Lieutenant James Enos. Mrs. Bolin, mother of the bride, wore a gown of cinnamon crepe with brown hat and accessories, with a corsage of green and brown orchids. The groom's mother, Mrs. Frank V. Culin, chose aqua crepe with black hat and accessories, and wore pale purple orchids.. A garden reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Gardenias were used to decorate the table that held the wedding cake.

After a honeymoon in San Francisco, the young couple will go to Fort Riley, Kansas, where Lieutenant Culin, who was graduated June 3 at West Point, will be stationed. A number of affairs were given for the wedding party. Friday evening there was a dinner at Ranchos Los Laurelos. Miss Carla Lepori gave a dinner at her home on Thursday after the rehearsal, and the bride entertained her attendants at luncheon on Thursday.

"Did you ever see a dream walking? Well, I did"—and it was after she took a course of treatments at THE STAUFFER STUDIO on Mission street between 4th and 5th. No pounding—no shattering diet—no eectricity—to look svelte in your newest bathing suit or shorts. And not expensive either. Twelve treatments for $15.00 or 25 treatments for $25.00. You'll feel like a dream and look like one too, if you call Della Vanney at THE STAUFFER STUDIO — 2101-W. Evening treatments may be had by appointment.

"Mary, Mary, quite contrary, how does your garden grow?" Well, it will grow beautifully after you have visited the SUNSET NURSERY on San Carlos opposite Carmel Inn. Here can be found a choice selection for the mid season planting. Large flowering zinnias, lobelias, and for a touch of blue there are Chinese forget-menots. And if your garden has a bald spot there are many garden shrubs that will give immediate effect. Begonias and fuchsias are to be had in abundance. Cut flowers to grace the home are fresh daily and the prices are moderate. If your garden needs anything in supplies, such as urns, pots, vases, umbrellas or a hose, or if you just want some advice the SUNSET NURSERY will supply your needs.

As new as tomorrow, as old as yesterday! Grandma's enchanting hobby of collecting silver souvenir spoons is just as fascinating as it was years ago. And so moderately priced—demi-tasse size is only $2.95. There is also teaspoon size. There is a wealth of beautiful gifts at THE VAGABOND'S CORNER. Come in and look!

Good printing is a must in advertising. Does your business stationery carry the appeal it should? Do your advertising circulars get read or scattered to the four winds? Think it over—then call at the office of THE PINE CONE on Dolores street and get expert help on your job printing.

And the delectable blouses to wear with them make a costume that will charm you and your favorite date.

GETTING AROUND THE PENINSULA

By GLENN CLAIRMONTE

Monterey County Fairgrounds will be the scene of a three-day 4th of July celebration, sponsored by the Seaside Chamber of Commerce, commencing at 11 a. m. Friday with a parade along the length of Alvarado street. Barbecue lunch will be served from 11:30 to the time when everyone is satisfied, the promise of plenty of food being one of the highlights of the advance publicity. At noon sharp the Lions Club '49er camp will open and will run all afternoon and evening. During the afternoon there will be exhibitions by trick horses and magicians, as well as a pet show and a program of western songs. The baseball game to begin at 5:30 will be played by men on donkeys, and during the evening there will be a boxing match and a dance. Saturday will disclose, besides the above attractions, a naval air show and a horse show, and on Sunday the horse show finals and the coronation of king and queen will be added to the usual entertainment.

Long after the theatre crowds had dispersed last Sunday evening, the night at Seaside was riddled with flames when the Del Rey Theatre and several shops in the same block were burned to the ground. By dawn on Monday Mark Keller, president of the Monterey Theatre Company, stated that the loss, in terms of replacement, amounted to $200,000 for the theatre and $50,000 for furnishings and adjacent shops, which had been occupied by the C. C. Briggs Real Estate Company, the Del Rey Coffee Shop, the Del Rey Sweet Shop, and the Del Rey Pet Shop. The Seaside fire trucks were reinforced with two engines from Fort Ord, 14 fire fighters from Monterey and a standby crew from the State Division of Forestry at Carmel Hill. Hundreds of residents trailed out of their houses hastily dressed and watched the building crash to the ground, sending up showers of sparks and waves of smoke. It was with difficulty that the firemen confined the fire to the immediate region.

San Juan Bautista's population of less than a thousand on Sunday, June 29, will entertain thousands of visitors from the outlying ranch districts as well as from far cities, at a fiesta-rodeo celebration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the largest mission in California. The chairman of the occasion is Eugene Jacques and the honorary co-chairmen are George R. Reilly of the state board of equalization, and Judge Edward Preston Murphy.

Everyone will wear the costumes of the year, 1797, and beards that have been nurtured for weeks will be at their best flowering. Events include mass at the Mission Church at 6 a. m., parade at 11, barbecue at noon, to be followed in the afternoon by saddle bronc riding, steer wrestling, bull riding, calf roping and races. A costume ball will be held in the evening. All proceeds from the celebration (as well as from the kangaroo court) will be used to restore the exterior of the old Mission.

Manuel Valenzuela, who manages Gump's of Carmel on Dolores street, was in a fret last Sunday morning when several of his friends delayed him in getting to his lot on Huckleberry Hill, Monterey, where he had to clear ground and raise a tent before nightfall. First Mrs. Ferdinand Haasis, then Peggy Moreau, then Barbara Stephenson seemed to be in a conspiracy, but when at last he arrived with his wife, Felicitas, and his two sons, Gorki and Ricardo, 4 and 2, he could not recognize his lot. Standing on the foundation which he and Ellwood Graham had built was a board and batten house painted in purples, yellows and blue in a most exhilarating manner. Manuel cried, "Look, Look!" and then went speechless.

Milling about the place were many of his friends, preparing a picnic lunch to celebrate the surprise house-raising which had been accomplished over night by Bruce Ariss, Ellwood Graham, Andre Moreau, David Duncan, George Rhoda, Paul McReynolds and Bion Burchell, with the assistance of Jean Varda, Ed and Toni Ricketts and many others.

Manuel and his family had been obliged to vacate a house in Pacific Grove, and the plan had been to live in a tent to be loaned by Mrs. Haasis until such time as materials could be obtained for the building of a house. But his friends had a better idea and carried it out so successfully that the Valenzuela family is no longer a victim of the housing shortage.

The Monterey History and Art Association will be entertained Sunday afternoon from 1 to 5 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Garcia, 351 Decatur street, Monterey, in celebration of the 100th anniversary of this building, which was the first brick house to be built on the Peninsula. The Garcia family has only recently received the abstract to the property, showing the names of the previous 12 owners, first of whom was Walter Colton, the first alcalde of Monterey.

Sandwiches and punch will be served and there will be dancing to music by the Morada Orchestra. Jose Soto, the dancer of San Francisco, has been invited to give the feature entertainment.

More than 90 combat-type Navy planes will fly over Monterey about noon today on the way from the U. S. Naval Air Station at Oakland to the Los Alamitos Air Station near Long Beach. The return flight will be made June 28, with an addition of 100 planes, including Gruman fighters, torpedo bombers, Curtiss dive bombers, Vought Corsair fighters, and PV-2 Harpoon bombers. The three-day celebration, held at 21 stations throughout the country, in honor of the first birthday of the Navy and Marine Reserve under the new enlarged organization, will close with a hangar dance at Oakland Sunday evening. The pilots exhibiting their skill in the coastal flights are the "week-end warriors" who report for duty at least three times a month under the Organized Reserve Unit arrangements, and also members of the reserve on their two-week duty.

"Christian Science" is the subject of the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, June 29, with the Golden Text from Matthew: "Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely we have received, freely give" (10:8).

The following citations are included in the sermon:

John: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father" (14:12).

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Our master said to every follower: 'Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature! . . . Heal the sick! . . . Love thy neighbor as thyself!' It was this theology of Jesus which healed the sick and the sinning. It is his theology in this book and the spiritual meaning of this theology, which heals the sick and causes the wicked to 'forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts' " (p. 138).

Bob Gargiulo was found to have a wrenched back and a chipped shoulder when Dr. Hugh Dormody examined him after the automobile accident Monday along U. S. Highway 101, and he will not be released from the hospital for a number of days. Bob had spent several months in the hospital since his right arm was injured by a buzz saw in Del Monte Forest last December, and he was on his way home from San Francisco where stitches had been taken out of wounds, after a delicate skin grafting operation. The car, driven by Myron Oliver, Jr., of Monterey, was overturned as a result of efforts to avoid a collision.

St. John's Chapel
Del Monte
The Rev. Theodore Bell
Chaplain

St. John's Chapel is a beautiful little church nestling in a grove of giant oak trees. Men and women from many lands have found it to be a plaace apart. It may be that you also will find its atmosphere congenial to the spiritual life. The Chapel is open all day long. Those who seek in its stillness to grow more conscious of God's presence do not go unrewarded. Sunday services at eight and eleven a.m. The Chapel is close to Hotel Del Monte.

BOYS' CLUB THREAT IN PACIFIC GROVE RACE
The Carmel Boys' Club became a definite threat for the leadership of the Pacific Grove softball league when they took the measure of the Seaside Merchants and the Peninsula Taxi during the past week. Uncovering a sensational pitcher in the person of Bobby Bell, the Carmel Boys have been playing inspired softball and are capable of beating any team in the A league. Rasmussen and Moody's, together with the Presidio are sporting unbeaten records with each having won 3 games and not being pressed in any of them. Rasmussen and the Presidio hook up next week and the loser will be tied with the Boys' Club for the runner-up position.

PINE CONE JUNIORS UPSET CARMEL BOYS' CLUB NINE
Playing vastly improved ball over their previous outings, the Carmel Pine Cone Juniors scored an upset win over the strong Carmel Boys' Club last Monday night at Sunset Field. Going into the last of the ninth inning the Boys' Club was leading 2 to 1 and appeared to have the game well in hand, but something happened. Mark Hildebrand, Juniors infielder, drew a walk to start hostilities and three successive singles scored 2 runs to ice the contest for the Pine Cone lads.

Denicio Narvaez was on the mound for the Coners and he pitched steady ball for the entire 9 innings. Steady outfield play by Jim Hare helped to smooth the way for the Pine Cone sprouts.

Bob DeAmaral served them for the Boys' Club and pitched creditable ball, but streaks of wildness kept him in hot water for much of the contest. Sensational fielding plays by his mates helped to keep the Pine Cone runners off the paths.

Editor of The Pine Cone,
Dear Madam:

In a recent issue of The Pine Cone, the police department inveighed against those motorists who back into other people's fenders and drive gaily away. But do the police always practice what they preach? A Carmel woman says "No." She says that recently she helped a policeman find a house for which he was looking in her neighborhood. Back in her own house, she was startled by a loud crash, and dashing outside, saw the end of the rustic and decidedly ancient fence, which borders her driveway, leaning precariously in several directions. And what was Mr. Policeman doing? Exactly like any other motorist, he was making his get-away as fast as he could back and turn his car.

Checked in flight by her screams of rage (she had at first thought him one of the taxi drivers, which made her doubly indignant) he smiled pleasantly and said, exactly like any other motorist, "No damage done, lady!" When she indignantly pointed out the tottering post and shattered board, he became properly apologetic, asked for a hammer and did a so-so repair.

"But if I hadn't run out so quickly," says my still irate friend, "I should have had to hammer in those nails myself."

—Katherine Gorringe.

Protests Against Abandonment Of Game Refuge

only a week before acting on them, in this case, last Saturday, a day after The Pine Cone had published.

Grounds for protesting the elimination of the refuge are: The refuge has provided a wintering place and a resting place for fourteen species of game ducks, whose diminishing number throughout the continent is becoming a matter of grave concern to conservationists and sportsmen alike.

The refuge is of little or no expense to the commission, since the citizens want it and co-operate in observing the restrictions and enforcing them.

The refuge, in a populous area, is not a suitable hunting ground. In this the sportsmen concur with the other citizens.

The refuge restrictions do not prohibit the destruction of species that have increased until they become pests (the much maligned garden-eating deer) since property owners within the refuge may dispose of them with proper permission.

Local sportsmen and conservationists believe that the elimination of the refuge would be a grave mistake, and are at a loss to find an explanation for the proposed action of the Fish and Game Commission.

NOT ON OUR BEACH

Alphonse de Vos of Pacific Grove went to a lot of expense rigging up a 3-wheel scooter and buying a license entitling him to deliver merchandise in Carmel, because he thought there ought to be good business for a live wire who was willing to sell ice cream on the beach. Last Friday the police department explained to him that the idea wasn't original with him, that others too had thought of developing a gold mine if only the city council could see eye to eye in the matter of granting concessions along the white sands. Mr. de Vos decided to consult the city attorney in order to find out exactly what use his license is, anyway. At least his scooter is still good.

SENIOR BAND IN PARADE

Cedric Jasper, head of the Monterey public schools recreation department, announces that the Senior band under the direction of Melvin E. Buffo will parade in the 4th of July celebration. There are still some vacancies in the junior band, led by Alvin Mendonsa, and in the drum corps. The 90 students already enrolled for this special summer instruction range from fourth graders to high school sophomores, and any young musicians interested are entitled to avail themselves of this opportunity.

Reilly Says No S. B. E. Hearing On Beer License

ing is impossible. "We have always tried to do what the people of Carmel want about liquor licenses. We held a hearing and denied the application for the Normandy Inn license, but we can't set hearings when we don't receive the protest in time."

Attorney Hudson, maintaining that the protest was in time and the board is out of line in its 12 year old policy of issuing licenses on the morning of the fifteenth day, has asked the attorney general's office for a ruling. If the attorney general upholds the board, Hudson intends to file suit in the district court.

ASSESSMENT ROLL HAS BEEN COMPLETED

City Clerk Peter Mawdsley completed the assessment roll for Carmel this week and as he predicted for The Pine Cone several weeks ago, there has been an increase of about a million and a half in assessed valuation. Actual figures: Total assessed valuation, $7,283,415; previous year, $5,672,615; increase, $1,610,800.

Citizens' tax bills will not be increased over last year, Mawdsley says, because he shall recommend to the city council a reduction in tax rate to equalize the increase in assessed valuation.
